Investigation of New York Stock Exchange Is Demanded

Legislative Probe for Fraud and Corruption Is Proposed by Democratic Senator Thomas F. Burchill

ALBANY, N. Y.—(P)—A legislative investigation of the New York Stock Exchange to study "apparent startling acts of fraud and corruption" was proposed Tuesday in New York's legislature.

Democratic Senator Thomas F. Burchill of New York city, introduced a resolution calling for an inquiry as a result of the recent failure of the Richard Whitney company.

Whitney pleaded guilty Monday to grand larceny of $105,000.

Support of Needy Stressed in Talk

Rev. Bert Webb Speaker Before Kiwanis Group Tuesday

The Rev. Bert Webb, chairman of the underprivileged children's committee, had charge of the program Tuesday at the Kiwanis luncheon at Barlow hotel. Ray Luck presided at the piano for the musical part of the program.

Chairman Webb said that the work of the committee and of the Kiwanis club was not a money raising program primarily, but consisted in aiding needy children to get in touch with the proper channels for aid.

The state hospital for crippled children at Little Rock and the Shriners hospital located at Shreveport are in a position to do work of this kind.

Recently several cases have been aided in securing medical and surgical care in these institutions. One was a boy needing attention by an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist.

Two were infants paralyzed sufferers. One girl was assisted in getting to a school in Tennessee.

Milk bottles will be placed on the counters of stores in Hope by the Kiwanis club in the near future for contributions.

Also tin-foil and old razor blades will be acceptable in addition to money if dropped in the bottles.

New members introduced to the club Tuesday were J. Ched Hall and Ray M. Luck.

Hope Student Gets Writeup at L. S. U.

Daisy Dorothy Heard Is Subject of Personality Sketch

Miss Daisy Dorothy Heard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Heard, South Grand street, this city, Hope High School graduate, and now a sophomore at Louisiana State University, at Baton Rouge, La., was the subject of the Daily Reveille, college student paper in its "Campus Personality" review in a recent March issue.

Since entering L. S. U., Daisy Dorothy has gained many friends and a growing popularity among the 8,000 students at L. S. U. She is a pledge to Kappa Delta, outstanding social sorority. The Daily Reveille says, in speaking of her:

"All sorts of interesting things have been learned about students since the start of 'Personality Snaps.' Daisy Dorothy Heard, for example, is a nice name that suits a nice personality—the longer she is Heard the nicer she becomes."

"Originally a Louisiana Miss, she now hails from Hope, Ark., and is a transfer from Magnolia college, that state, a sophomore in Teachers college here. Daisy Dorothy Heard can also boast of prominent relatives, for her uncle, William Heard, was governor of Louisiana from 1900 to 1904."

"Dancing, bridge-playing, and sea-faring, are her specialties, with a large helping of the Kappa Alpha's on the side. She is a pledge for Kappa Delta sorority."

Dick Whittington and his cat, St. George and the Dragon, and other characters appropriate to each section will be silhouetted and used to mark new underground stations in London.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

(In this series of Cranium Crackers with a court-room query, unusual local statutes may alter slightly the legal decisions given.)

Mrs. Howell carried a $5000 life insurance policy, which provided an increase to $10,000 in the event of the insured's death from accident. The phrase "death from accident" was defined to mean "death resulting solely from bodily injuries caused by external, violent and purely accidental means," but does not include death resulting from or caused directly or indirectly by the taking of any poison.

Mrs. Howell's death was due to the accidental taking of an overdose of a drug, which when properly used is a valuable medicine in treating nervousness and sleeplessness.

The insurance company paid Mrs. Howell's beneficiaries $5000, but contended that they were not entitled to the additional $5000 because her death had been caused by taking a poison.

The beneficiaries brought suit and won in the lower court. The insurance company appealed.

Should the decision of the lower court be affirmed or reversed? Answer on Classified Page

France Reassures Czechs of Support

France to Take Military Action to Maintain European Order

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Socialist Premier Leon Blum's government stood ready to use force, if necessary to maintain European order.

Blum and Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour reassured the Czechoslovakian minister, Stefan Osasky, that France would take military action as promised under the Franco-Czech treaty if the Nazis attempted to extend their sway to Czechoslovakia.

The fourth People's Front ministry gave France a cabinet after four long days and amid one of the greatest European upheavals since the World war. But opposition developed in financial, political and diplomatic quarters.

The frame sagged to a new low compared with the dollar and pound as a result of what financial quarters called Blum's "half-hearted" assurances there would be no exchange control and their fear that his government would not last. The frame was quoted at 32.50 to the dollar (3.07 cents) at the Bourse closing.

Political observers said that most members of France's conservative Senate were bitterly opposed to the cabinet.

They regarded a national union government of all parties—essential and believed that only Edouard Daladier, minister of war and defense, or Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies, could form one. Edouard himself, conceded that his was only a transition ministry and that he hoped to evolve a national union government with conservative support.

Opposition rose against the choice of Joseph Paul-Boncour as foreign minister. Critics feared that his known anti-Italian views might undermine French support of Italian-British friendship talks.

Non-existence of Austria except as a state within the German nation was accepted as accomplished and irrevocable. But France was determined not to stand idly by and see Czechoslovakia yield to the Nazis.

Red River Project Is Given Approval

War Department Gives Favorable Report on $54,000,000 Dam

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The proposed $54,000,000 Denison dam to curb floods on the Red river and utilize their destructive forces for power development received a favorable report from the War Department.

Majority Leader Rayburn (Dem., Tex.), predicted congress would pass an omnibus flood control measure this year and that it would include the Denison dam.

The War Department's recommendation was sent to congress by Secretary of War, George D. Akers, who approved both the flood control and hydroelectric power generating features.

Noting that no local agency was in a position to stand the cost of the power features, he recommended that the government put up the entire $54,000,000 on one of the following three conditions:

1. A qualified private applicant be licensed by the Federal Power Commission to operate the power generating and distribution features.

2. That some state agency or joint state agencies operate the power system.

3. The United States operate and maintain the power system as planned at Bonneville dam.

The report said Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana would profit by the project with Louisiana receiving two-fifths of the flood control benefits, and the other states one-fifth each.

Hitler Boasts of Invasion Austria as Great Success

"No Force on Earth Can Shake Us," He Tells Cheering Crowd

BLUFF BY ENGLAND

Rebels Push Further to Coastal Area in Spanish War

By the Associated Press
In Vienna Tuesday Adolf Hitler told the world that the absorption of Austria was the "greatest achievement of my life" while France and Britain fumbled over means to curb his penchant for success.

Prime Minister Chamberlain seemed to prefer an immediate and broadened British rearmament with some sort of national conscription to bluff Hitler into line before publicly pledging armed support of France and Czechoslovakia against any further Hitlerian threat.

Leon Blum, head of France's new government, sought industrial peace to speed French rearmament.

A stroke which might end the Spanish civil war with an insurgent victory seemed imminent as insurgent legions moved closer to the Mediterranean coast.

Triumph Is Hailed
No ancient despot could have exercised more control over a people than did Hitler when he stood on the balcony of the Imperial hotel and proclaimed of his new Pan-Germany:

"No force on earth can shake us!" His words were a challenge and a warning to the world which a fanatically enthusiastic crowd acclaimed with deafening roars. Certainly no less than a million worshippers, probably more, shouted "Heil, Hitler!" to the man who left this once proud capital as an obscure artist and came back in triumph.

Crowds Jam Street
Frenzied throngs jammed the broad Ringstrasse for six blocks, cheering with a zeal that amounted to religious fervor. Women wept because Hitler at last had arrived. Men embraced each other.

Standing on the balcony of his hotel, Hitler—one face in a sea of faces—seemed insignificant until a huge searchlight picked him out with a pencil of light in the dusk.

For three hours the crowds demonstrated before his hotel, calling him back to his balcony again and again. Officers with Hitler said they never had seen such enthusiasm. It surpassed even that of the early Nazi days in Berlin.

Finally he raised his hands for silence in answer to the clamor for his voice and a hundred thousand persons in the noisy street became silent.

Impromptu Speech
"The German Reich as it stands today is inviolable," he shouted, "no one can shatter it!"

"German compatriots! I have felt in the last few days all the emotions which now stir you. This has been an historical charge and the entire German people feel your emotions."

"Not two million people in one city but seventy-five million people in one nation are stirred to the depths of feeling which you now are demonstrating."

"I am deeply stirred by this historic change. 'You all live up to your oath, all of you from Königsberg to Hamburg and down to Vienna. You do so in deepest conviction.'"

Campania Against Jews
Nazification of Austria, meanwhile, was being accomplished with lightning strikes. In Germany the process of reshaping the state to the National Socialist mold required years. In Austria it is being accomplished in days.

The world of Austria's Jews fell around their shoulders. Thousands attempted to flee. Physicians and lawyers were prevented from practicing. Jewish stores were plundered. Jews were beaten and arrested. The Jewish residential districts were in panic. New restrictive measures against Jews were being forced.

The Austrian Evangelical church was made a section of the German Evangelical church. Its head telegraphed Hitler greetings from 3,000,000 members and hailed him as "our rescuer."

The first order of Heinrich Himmler, chief of all German police, was to elevate Blackshirt Austrian Schutz-Staffel guards, which were forbidden through illegal measures of the previous administration, to be a national organization. Viktor Lutze, chief of German Brownshirt S. A. guards was named head of the Austrian S. A. division.

Escaped Arkansas Convict Captured Gladewater, Tex.

Harry Wells Surrenders When Officers Surround House

GAS BOMBS ARE USED

Fugitive Admits Identity, But Says Nothing Else

LONGVIEW, Texas.—(P)—Twenty state, county and federal officers surrounded a house in the town of Gladewater, near here, early Tuesday morning and captured Harry Wells, an escaped Arkansas convict.

Officers found Wells alone in the house. They tossed tear gas bombs into the house and then called on Wells to surrender.

State Police Captain Lee Miller said Wells came out of the house and was taken without resistance.

The convict admitted his identity, but would say nothing else, Miller said.

He apparently had been wounded slightly in the foot.

Wells was suspected of robbing a Luling, Texas, bank and of shooting three officers in South Texas last Saturday.

Pine Bluff Man Is Victim of Attack

Richard Reed, 29, Dies Tuesday From Ax Wounds

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—Richard Reed, 29, struck in the head with an ax when he tried to make a collection from a negro several weeks ago, died early Tuesday morning.

Reed, a grocery clerk, had been sent to collect some money owed by Jim McClellan, Warren negro.

McClellan attacked him with an ax and inflicted a head wound, causing concussion of the brain.

The negro was convicted of assault with intent to murder and sentenced to 21 years in the penitentiary. He may be brought to trial soon on a murder charge, officers said.

Fort Smith Man Is Found Dead in Barn

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(P)—Miles E. Monroe, 43, was found dead Monday, his body hanging from a rafter in an outbuilding at his home here. Coroner Hugh Johnson returned a verdict of suicide.

Coroner Johnson said Monroe had been dead about three hours before the body was found Monday afternoon.

Monroe served in the marine corps of the United States army during the World war. He had been in ill health for several months.

Arkansas Woman Is Held at Miami

Mrs. Cora Hebner Placed Under Arrest on Charge of Murder

POCAHONTAS, Ark.—(P)—Sheriff John T. Thompson said he had been notified of the arrest at Miami, Fla., of Mrs. Cora Treuba Hebner, who is wanted here on a murder charge.

He said Sheriff D. C. Coleman telegraphed him that Mrs. Hebner admitted her identity and waived extradition. She made no statement concerning the charge against her. Thompson will leave for Miami Tuesday.

Circuit Judge John L. Bledsoe issued a bench warrant charging Mrs. Hebner with murder following the discovery of a skeleton in an abandoned cellar on a farm formerly occupied by her and her husband.

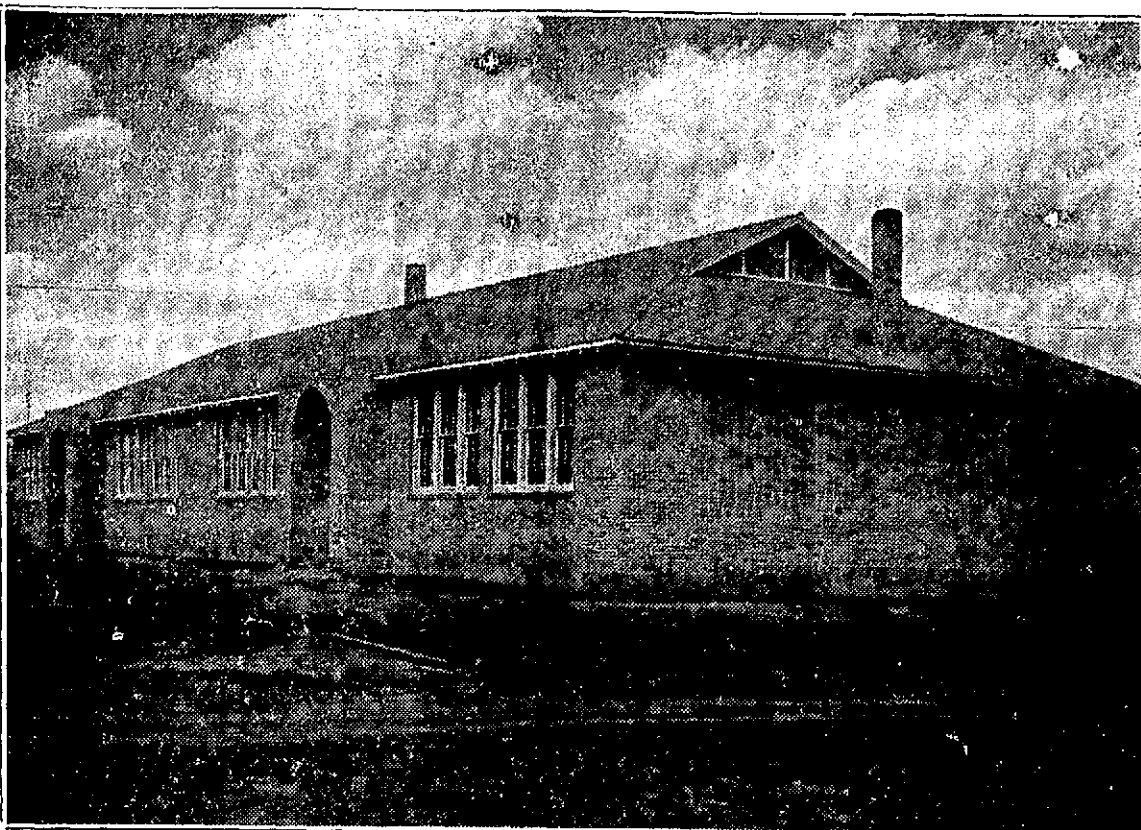

Thompson said neighbors complained to him concerning the disappearance of the invalid husband, Will Hebner. Mrs. Hebner said that she had placed her husband in a St. Louis hospital.

She left here about 10 days ago, apparently for St. Louis, Thompson said. He asked St. Louis authorities to apprehend her but they reported that she had left there last Monday.

Coroner H. G. McNabb said the skeleton was that of a white person who had been dead at least six months. J. W. Collier who rented the farm after Mrs. Hebner allowed it to revert to its original owner, made the discovery.

Girl Scout Week Is Proclaimed Here

Local Organization to Observe Founding of Movement

This week girl scouts all over the United States are celebrating the 26th year of girl scouting. The movement was founded in 1912 by Mrs. Juliette Low of Savannah, Georgia. She patterned her first troop after the scout troops in England founded by Lord Baden Powell.

Girl Scouts in Hope have made splendid progress the past year. Troop 3 of 7th and 8th grade girls was organized three years ago. Mrs. Bert Webb has been their leader for over a year. Troop 1 of 6th and 7th grade girls was organized last April with Mrs. Clyde Monts as leader.

Mrs. J. R. Williams organized troop 2 of 9th and 10th grade girls last May. Miss Mildred McCants has been their leader since October. The baby troop, Troop 4, of 4th and 5th grade girls was organized in October with Mrs. Lyman Armstrong and Mrs. Charles Benson as leaders.

Work on the girl scout cabin to be located at Fair Park will begin the 17. This cabin will be for the use and pleasure of all the girl scouts of Hope and this area.

The building is sponsored by the girl scout council with Mrs. Bob Campbell as chairman, and Mrs. Ched Hall chairman of the building committee.

Friday, the four troops with a total membership of 85 girls will celebrate the 26th birthday with a tree planting service at the high school followed by a birthday cake and program.

Funeral for Famed Lawyer Held Tuesday

There it will lie in state from noon until 2 p. m. Tuesday (CST) when memorial services will be held. The only speaker will be Federal Judge William H. Holly, Darrow's former law partner. Cremation in Oakwoods cemetery will follow.

Flow in Barnett Oil Well Halted

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—Tubing was being set Monday in the Barnett No. 1 well near here, after the well stopped flowing.

Operators discovered salt water was entering the casing at the joint of the seven-inch and five and one-half-inch pipes.

Alarm was quieted because of the presence of much oil and gas, with several saturations being shown, and officials of the Kerr-Lynn Oil company expressed belief that the salt could be shut off. The tubing will be set to the joint of the different size pipes.

A fine showing of oil was reported in the Phillips No. 1, near Village, at a depth of 4665 feet. That depth is where the Barnett well encountered 12 feet of saturation.

A drill stem test was taken in the Phillips well Monday and was said to have had four pipe joints of oil.

The Thomas-Crane No. 1, in the Buckner area, was reported to have reached a good saturation at 7257 feet and is expected to make a producer.

A drill stem is being fished out of the Bodewy No. 1.

Leadership in Two Branches Lacking Says Senator Hall

House Sit 3 Hours, Takes No Action, Then Adjourns

BAILEY IS RAPPED

Governor Unable to Get Action—Nothing Done After 5 Days

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Voting down a resolution urging congress to enact a national sales tax, the house adjourned at noon Tuesday until Wednesday morning.

Adjournment came after less than three hours sitting, featured by two recesses.

The house adopted a few resolutions, rejected other and took no action on legislation.

Senator Hall of Scotland, called upon the senate to organize its "own leadership" to work out legislation "for the welfare of the state."

"Our governor has failed to show leadership he should have shown," Hall declared.

"It behooves ourselves to establish leadership and do the work we were elected to do. Let us work together to take this matter into our own hands in order to safeguard the interests of the public. If necessary, we should stay here 60 days to put our ship of state on a keel and in the shape of decency."

Hall's address followed speeches by Senators Shaver, Wynne and Rowell declaring that the present special session was accomplishing nothing.

Adjournment Cry Heard

A suggestion that the special session of the Arkansas legislature adjourn by Saturday was heard on the house floor Tuesday.

During debate on a minor resolution, Representative Burris of Russellville, asked Ray Blair of Paris, who had the floor.

"Don't you think we could pass a resolution to quit and go home?" Blair replied.

"I think that will be in order by Saturday. We can orphably pass it then."

Taking the floor himself, Burris said: "We have been here five days and we haven't done as much as we should have in one day—it's just a shame. We spend one day passing or killing an amendment."

"Then the next day we devote all the day to reversing our previous day's action. Folks up the creek my way are going to get tired of this in a hurry. You are just running your races now instead of passing legislation," Burris declared.

Senate Wants Extension

The upper house was in session little more than hour Monday during which it completed action on a $26,575 appropriation bill to pay expenses of the special session, and adopted six resolutions.

Since the legislature convened last Thursday there has been adopted in both houses measures proposing an extended session for consideration of four subjects and members indicated other subjects would be introduced later.

Subjects on which legislative action is proposed in resolutions already adopted either in house or senate are:

1. Reduction of the state's 6.5 cents per gallon gasoline tax.

2. Repeal or amendment of the 1937 automobile testing law.

3. Financial aid to municipal street improvement districts.

4. Refund of money to persons who purchased tax-forfeited lands from the state but failed to receive title to the property.

Monday's debate flared on a resolution by Featherston of Murfreesboro for extension of the session to consider the refund to land buyers. The resolution asked that Gov. Carl E. Bailey include the subject in a supplemental call.

Lieut. Gov. Bob Bailey, in answer to a question from the floor, said the governor could not issue a supplemental call while the legislature was in session but could call another special session as soon as the present session adjourned.

Featherston urged adoption of his resolution, declaring that a number of persons had bought lands from the state land department only to have their title voided later by court action.

Taylor of Clarksville voiced immediate opposition.

"I am not opposed to the legislation the senate has in mind," Taylor said, "but I am opposed to extending this"

Old Age Does Odd Things—Like Lowering Height After 65th Year

(No. 474)

As we grow older, changes develop in our bodies which are the mark of the inability of the tissues to grow and to repair themselves. The average human being does not attain his full height until about the age of 35 or 40. After 20 years of age the increase in height is relatively slight.

From the 65th year onward the human being gradually decreases in height and after the 75th year he may decrease in height a little more.

The total loss in height may reach as much as two inches but is frequently less than one-half inch.

Nowadays we have learned so much about our diets and the methods of controlling our weight by diet that the weight curves of earlier years are no longer reliable. While many people reach their greatest weight between the years of 25 and 30, other people reach their greatest weight between the ages of 40 and 50.

There are, moreover, certain periods in life when there is a tendency to put on fat. The man tends to put on fat between the 30th and 40th year. The woman tends to put on fat with each childbirth and nursing period. Women also tend to gain weight immediately after the cessation of the functions associated with childbirth.

Permanent teeth are usually developed in most human beings by the 25th year. Most people have lost many of their teeth by the time they are 50 years of age, and the majority of people have lost a good many teeth by the 60th year. There is reason to believe, however, that with modern knowledge concerning the care of the teeth and the use of a diet in relationship to that care, more and more people will retain sets of good teeth as they grow older.

Especially interesting among the changes that occur with old age are those which concern the eyes. From the time a child is born its ability to accommodate its vision to sight begins to decrease. So definite is this change that it may be used as an index of the age of the person concerned. Most people gradually become farsighted between the ages of 45 and 50 years and this increases steadily after the 50th year. In many people the first sign of age is the necessity for glasses to correct the farsightedness.

Hearing also begins to decrease but not frequently until 65 years of age. There is also a definite change in the rate of the pulse from childhood to old age, sometimes modified by the development of disease.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

(No. 38)

True or not, the cherry tree incident has lived in history, because its basis is moral courage.

Moral courage means facing things and taking the consequences.

The little child at first blurted out his confession without batting an eye. He comes right to us and says, "I spilled the milk," or "I lost my mittens."

Who and how does he learn to equivocate and fib? When and how does he learn to blame somebody or something else?

Let us go back and examine his early days. When he was very, very little, and fell on the step, didn't we hug him and pat the sore place and hid the bad step? He learned that it was very pleasant to see something else get blamed for his predicament.

The first alibi of his life. We excused him when he lost his mittens. "I should have sewed them to your coat, darling. It was my fault," we purred. Which was natural. We should have done so. Moreover, Jackie was just a little chap and not entirely responsible for his losses.

Jackie soon learned that no matter what he did, it was never his fault. But then came a day. He took out our diamond pin and used it to dig a bug out of a hole.

"Jack, you little imp, where is my pin?" I know you took it because I saw you at my box. There now. You admit it. If I don't find it in a few minutes you are going to get a good spanking."

Scolding Is a Shock

Jackie, not accustomed to taking the consequences of his own actions, resents this new treatment. He knows better next time. He will lie about it.

What are parents to do when the child comes to them in confessional and spills out the truth? Punish him? Talk to him until he is verbally bruised and morally crushed?

No, especially with those too young for judgment. Accusation and punishment should be tempered to age. But the alibi system is out. From the first, he should be shown that his little mishaps are largely his own responsibility. Happily—without too much accusation or blame, but not with entire clearance.

Permit any child, young or older, to explain how it happened, but never allow him to put the blame where blame is not due. Let him face you truthfully and courageously.

If he knows he is wrong, and has years enough to reason out justice, he will take his punishment with philosophy. Anything is better, however, than the fearful craven who won't admit his wrong, who won't even face it. The physical coward is a hero compared to the moral winking.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

An Old Sidelight on U. S. History

An old bit of obscure American history is dug up and presented in full-dress regalia by Katherine Mayo in her new book, "General Washington's Dilemma" (Harcourt, Brace; $2.50).

It appears that when Cornwallis surrendered, divers of his officers were assigned under the formal and elaborate code then prevailing—to look after the comfort and well-being of the British private soldiers who had been taken prisoner. These officers were themselves prisoners, of course, but there was a definitely implied pledge on the part of their captors to deliver them right side up and in good condition at the end of the war.

Along in 1782, then, some British Tory troops captured an American officer who had been raiding Tory strongholds in New Jersey. Accusing him of various atrocities, they promptly hanged him.

Washington, highly incensed, forthwith demanded of the British that they turn over to him the Tory officer who had ordered the hanging. If they refused, he said, he would hang one of the British officers taken with Cornwallis, in retaliation.

The British did refuse, so a young officer was chosen by lot and sentenced to be hanged. And here arose Washington's dilemma: he found himself forced to execute a prisoner whose person he was pledged to keep safe.

The affair raised a great stir, at the time, and apparently cost Washington a good deal of sleep. In the end it was settled happily, and the young British went unhanged; and Miss Mayo has wrapped it all up here and presented it as a queer little sidelight on our revolutionary history.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE MAIDWELL—heroine, the student.
DEREK MANTION—an artist who loves money.
HILDEGARD THORVALD—Derek's painted her portrait.
DR. HUBERTS—he met his most difficult case.

Yesterday Derek leaves from the street car, with only $10, returns to the Museum for her old job. But there is none. She did not have a good net, anyhow, she reflects, afterward.

CHAPTER V

AS Constance walked home through the gathering dusk after her talk with Miss Taft at the Museum that evening, the ten-dollar bill in her purse seemed to shrink and dwindle.

But life must be sustained even if Derek was by this time skimming the clouds hundreds of miles away. She stopped at a delicatessen and broke the ten-dollar bill to buy butter, rolls, cream and lettuce. When she came out of the shop, she had left one five-dollar bill, four ones, and forty-eight cents in change.

Outside her door, a dry cleaner's delivery man was waiting for her with two dresses she had sent out several days before. When she had paid him, she had parted with another three dollars of the precious ten. . . . And this was the first day.

She was exploring her ice box to find out how far stores on hand would go towards averting a real food panic when the telephone rang. It was Miss Taft calling.

"If," Miss Taft's crisp accents said, "time still hangs heavy on your hands, you might like to talk with Mrs. O. Major—you know, the aluminum Majors. . . . I happen to know that she wants a temporary secretary to help her with this Associated Artists' Show she's sponsoring. . . . Only $25 a week and expenses; but I understand that what you're interested in is mental diversion rather than sudden riches."

A lot you understand, Constance thought. Aloud she said, "Go on. You interest me."

"Fine. Then meet the lady at Daimler's for lunch at 1:30 tomorrow. Give your name to the maître d'hôtel and you will be conducted to her table as if you were a grand duchess."

"I'll be there," Constance promised. "And thanks a lot."

"And—oh, by the way, look your smartest—sartorially, I mean," Miss Taft advised. "The lady has worn the same hat for years—largely, I've always imagined, because she's never been able to find another one so grotesque—but she likes her cheap help to put up a snappy facade."

CONSTANCE went to sleep that night pondering an idea which she might have been surprised to learn had often been entertained by other overwrought souls—that time is sometimes reckoned, not in hours and minutes, but in emotional content. . . . It seemed to her that since she had risen that morning she had lived a tempestuous lifetime.

Even so, she was too numb with fatigue to forecast the misery of the next morning. She had a very bad half hour when she awoke to sunshine streaming brightly over the trunk and bags which stood packed—ready for going away—with Derek today.

She was awakened by the florist's boy with the corsage Derek had ordered for her—all delicate rose and mauve and blue with lacy sprays of white. . . . Derek loved color. . . . "White is too much like a funeral, darling." The came out of the shop, she had left one five-dollar bill, four ones, and forty-eight cents in change.

It was to have been a quiet wedding—just she and Derek with two young married friends of her own, Don and Anne Cable—Derek, strangely enough, seemed to have no friends among his male acquaintanceship whom he particularly wanted with him.

When Constance remembered to telephone Anne the news of the postponement, Anne had insisted that she spend the day with her.

"We'll have dinner together just as we had planned to do after the wedding—you and Don and I," she said. "You can tell us all about Derek's piece of luck. Then you and I can take in a show afterward. I'm going to be a widow, too, tonight. Don has to go out of town. He has a case before the Supreme Court." Anne added with the ill-concealed pride of the wife of such a promising young attorney.

"I—thank you, Anne," Constance fumbled for words. "But if you don't mind, I think I'll just rest. . . . I—I've been terribly rushed lately."

Just the wrong thing to say, of course. She shouldn't let them think she was crawling into a corner to lick her wounds. She should have gone, her head high. But she couldn't face Don and Anne's interested friendly questions—watch them wondering, conjecturing behind their eyes while they tried to make gay, inconsequential talk. . . . I won't be pitied, Constance thought.

"Too bad you couldn't get ready in time to go with Derek." Already Anne's tone was too elaborately bright and casual.

"Wasn't it? But of course some one had to stay to break up my apartment. You know we intended coming back here after—afterwards, while Derek finished some work."

She hung up as soon as she could, for fear Anne's generous heart might prompt her to insist on coming over to help speed the packing.

The airmail letter from Derek came while she was washing the dishes after her desultory breakfast.

She was thinking. By this time I should have been getting ready. . . . In a few hours Derek would have been here—when the messenger rapped at the door and handed in the gayly red and blue bordered envelope.

The letter had been mailed the evening before at an airport halfway across the continent. Constance sobbed when she realized how many miles these few hours had put between her and Derek. "Connie, darling," Derek began. "I am writing this at my earliest opportunity. It is incredible how very full every minute has been since I last saw you."

And how empty for me, Constance thought. She read on: "Baron Grapefruit has the most amazing grasp of detail of any man I have ever met. Together we have gone with a fine-tooth comb over every item of the plans for the studio he is furnishing for me. Already he has wired orders to workmen for enlarging the window space and installing special lighting. Within a week it should all be ready for work. If there is any angle he has not already gone into and decided upon, even to the gown in which his daughter is to be painted, I have yet to discover it. I shall be lucky if he doesn't go ahead and paint the portrait while he is about it."

"Part of his plan is that I am to take plenty of time to get acquainted with Miss Thorvald and to study her before I begin actual work on the portrait. I am not at all sure that this is not going to be the most critical part of the job; for although she seems to be a very casual, friendly, simple person—very much like a clear, shallow, sunny pool—you can't help feeling that she has hidden depths which it might not be easy to penetrate."

Indeed! thought Constance, and read the last passage thoughtfully three times.

Then she glanced impatiently ahead for some hint of the news she most wanted to hear.

Mrs. Lewis W. Cherry, Mrs. William A. McDowell and Miss Cherry McDowell of Little Rock were Sunday guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Richards and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Howard.

One of the charming and beautiful affairs of the spring season was the luncheon given by Mrs. M. H. Barlow at 1 o'clock Monday.

The guests for this delightful complement were the members of the Bay View Reading club, which will celebrate its 26th birthday in early May. The large round table seating 28 was arranged in the main dining room, which is always beautifully decorated in seasonal flowers.

The guests were greeted in the lobby by Mrs. Barlow and Miss Host John D. Barlow. The luncheon table was laid with handsome damask, perfectly appointed, centered with a huge mound of purple and white iris and King Alfred jonquils surrounded by fern fronds, with the space between the central adornment and the service covered with jonquil heads and pansies in the chosen color scheme of purple and yellow, all together forming an exquisite table decoration. The guests were seated according to their place cards each place was marked with a dainty basket filled with confections and a miniature Wedgewood vase filled with pansies. These lovely vases were given as favors. During the luncheon hour, the club president, Mrs. Hugh Smith acted as toastmistress and following two very clever toasts the fun was on. Including a program in which there was never a dull moment. Imagination's riot in the introductions, thereby establishing records for a club filled with members "who could take it!"

Following the tempting five course luncheon, chairs were pushed back and a round table dialogue announcing the passing of the noted "Mrs. Grundy" cleared the way for a most entertaining floor show, further establishing records for the performers, which marked the close of "a perfect party."

Suppress 80 Fires in Forest Unit 9

Protection of Valued Timber Lands Stressed by Forest Ranger

It was reported here Tuesday that forest rangers in protection unit 9, Arkansas State Forestry Commission, had suppressed eighty forest fires during the first three months of the year.

These being on protected lands or on lands adjoining protected lands on which fires were burning towards protected lands. However, Russell Stadelman, district forester, states that the average fire was less than five acres.

During March the high winds make forest fires especially dangerous and damaging. In young stands of timber it is not uncommon to find a mortality rate reach 50 per cent after a fire has swept through the stand.

With the value of young timber increasing and increasing number of individuals are putting their timbered lands under fire protection with the State Forestry Commission which is cooperating with the United States Forest Service.

It is also reported that 12 misdemeanor cases and one felony case had been brought to court by forest rangers in this protection unit this year. These being individuals who had carelessly or intentionally set out fire.

Construction has been undertaken on a new steel look-out tower in 35-14-

Emmet Winner in 2 Tourney Games

Nevada Team, However, Loses Out After Reaching Semi-Finals

EMMET, Ark.—The Emmet girls basketball team learned a good share of recognition for their basketball ability as shown by their play in the recent state tournament at Little Rock. Emmet's first game of the tournament was played with Carlisle. The game was hard fought, neither team gaining more than a six-point lead at any time. Carlisle boasts of having the tallest basketball player in the state including the national champions, the Lewis-Norwood Flyers. Three of Emmet's guards, Crumby, Brown, and Wells fouled out if the game in an attempt to keep the ball forward from scoring. Emmet won by a score of 30 to 25. Crabb of Emmet scoring 17 points for scoring honors.

Emmet's second game was with the strong undefeated Farmington team, winner of three invitation tournaments.

This was another close, exciting game. After leading by a two-point margin with less than two minutes of play remaining, Cobb and Chambers hit two baskets in quick order to make the final court stand; Emmet 34; Farmington 28. M. Brown of Emmet got the ball off the opponent's board repeatedly to aid the Emmet cause considerably. Crabb of Emmet was high scorer with a total of 18 points. Union defeated Emmet in the semi-finals by a score of 22 to 19. Emmet was playing without the services of Crank regular forward who was out due to injuries. Gammill of Union was high with 14 points.

In the free-throw contest Emmet's contestants ranked 2nd, 3rd, and 4th. C. Crabb of Emmet scored 40 goals out of a possible 50 for second place.

Mary Ruth Chambers scored 39 out of 50 for third place and Marion Crabb scored 35 out of 50 for fourth place. Fuggy O'Brien of Union won the free-throw championship by tossing 43 out of 50.

Nona Mae Crank of Emmet won third place in the beauty contest.

C. Crabb scored an average of 15 points per game for third place scoring honors in the tournament, although she played one less game than the first and second place winners. The tournament play closed the high school basketball careers of Crank and C. Crabb, forwards and E. Jones and Crumby guards.

CLEVELAND'S BIG FIFTH

CLEVELAND REPUTEDLY HAS THE FINEST PITCHING IN BASEBALL IN ALLEN, FELLER, HARDER, GALEHOUSE, AND SOME MORE, BUT

Numerous Reasons Why Yankees Win

Pitchers and Knickerbocker Make Yanks Look Invincible

Last of six stories on the New York Yankee organization, baseball's greatest machine.

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—There are numerous reasons why the New York Yankees should win their third consecutive American League pennant and world championship.

It is true that the great Joe DiMaggio should swing into full stride. As though he was marking time in 1937, when he batted .346, hit 45 home runs, drove in 167 runs and scored 151, and was the finest center fielder since the immortal Tris Speaker.

Red Ruffing was absent when the boys started playing for keeps last April, and Vernon Gomez was a question mark following a sour campaign. Both are bearing down on Huggins Field right now, highly satisfied, and as sound as War Admiral.

Most of the better ball players today are good business men, and there are too many of them in the Jacob Ruppert party for the well-being of the remainder of the field, which is mediocre after you mention Detroit, Cleveland, and Chicago. There is not the slightest trace of the ennuis which formerly and frequently gripped out-fits used to bring out in front.

But I believe that the handicappers are overlooking two of the more important points in analyzing the Yankees of 1938.

The first is the battle being waged for berths by four promising new young pitchers.

The second is the presence of Bill Knickerbocker.

Pitch for Position:
The strange slinging fees referred to are those of Joseph Nathan Bagg, Richard Alton Donald, Stephen Richard Eundra, and Lee Stine, all right-handers.

Eeggs, a slender six-footer who took his degree at Geneva College, won 21 while losing four for the Newark wonder Bears in 1937, and capped 22 and dropped nine for Norfolk in 1936. He had an earned run average of 2.61 in the International League.

Donald, a tall, broad-shouldered 185-pounder from Louisiana Tech, bagged 13 straight for Newark, and finished with 19 victories, and only two reverses. He struck out 372 in his four seasons of professional ball—with Wheeling, Norfolk, Ginghamton, and Newark.

Sundra, who won 15 and lost four for Newark, scales more than 200 pounds and is a glutton for work. He has a hard one that whistles and a puzzling sinker.

Stine's record with the second division Kansas City array wasn't what attracted Yankee scouts, who suspect that the 24-year-old Californian may this year make the White Sox and Reds regret having let him go.

Then there is Joseph Albert Vance, a veteran who seems to improve with age, inasmuch as he won 17 and lost nine for the poor Kansas City crowd last term.

If none of the newcomers crash the front line, they at least will enable Joe McCarthy to keep applying the pressure to the current regulars—Gomez, Ruffing, Monte Pearson, Bump Hadley, and Johnny Murphy. Ky Paul Andrews is still sticking around, Bud Chandler is back, and Kemp Wicker is the other southpaw.

With Pearson's arm once more in shape, the Yankee staff matches that of any other club in the circuit, not excepting the one representing Cleveland.

Knick the Backstop:
Not content with possessing the last considered the prize recruit of the year, Joe Gordon, as a replacement for Tony Lazzeri at second base, the Yankees gave the Browns $20,000 and Don Heffner for Knickerbocker.

Five will get you 10 if you have an idea that the 261 Knickerbocker hit in bailing himself out of Sportsman's

LIKE THIS, SON

Jim Bagby, Jr., won't be able to blame it on lack of instruction if he fails to make the grade with the Boston Red Sox this season. The son of the former Cleveland hurling star is shown looking on while Big Jim, now a sergeant on the Atlanta, Ga., police force, teaches him how to throw a screwball. Young Jim won 21 and lost eight for Hazelton of the N. Y.-Pa. League last year.

Fark, St. Louis, is the best he'll do for the Yankees, if given the opportunity. He's a solid .300 hitter in anybody's major loop, and was a whale of a shortstop in Cleveland.

Knick not only serves as a backstop for Gordon, but Frank Crosetti will have to boost his .234 of 1937 to stay in the thick of things.

George Selkirk is prancing around as lively as ever with a good arm hanging from his right shoulder in place of the bad one that kept him in the dugout throughout one half of last season.

Tom Henrich exhibits the scar marking the spot where the cartilage was removed from his left knee in October. Basketball in his home town of Massillon, O., and drills to date indicate that the knee is okeh.

With new stars replacing and hustling the old, and not a sign of a sick bay, there is ample evidence that the Yankees will keep coming.

Bodcaw Plays Final Game on Wednesday

BODCAW, Ark.—The Bodcaw Badgers were ready Tuesday for their final home game of the season. They will meet the Louisville Lions here Wednesday night.

The Badgers will endeavor to cap the last home game as well as the final game of the season with Blevins there Friday night.

Captain W. N. Bailey is expected to be back in shape by Wednesday.

Bailey's illness last Friday was given as a partial reason for the one-sided loss which the Badgers suffered at the hands of the Little Rock quintet. Bailey is Bodcaw's all district center.

The two final games this week will bring Bodcaw's total games to fifty-two. So far they have won forty.

First Workout Is Held by Travelers

16 Athletes Report—Billy Evans Expected to Arrive Tuesday

LITTLE ROCK—Sixteen players including the vanguard of the Boston Red Sox B camp, figured in the first spring training exercises at Travelers Field Monday.

Batterymen absent were Catcher Jim Galvin and Pitcher Garland Braxton, veteran left-hander.

Although infielders and outfielders are scheduled to report Thursday, infielder Paul Campbell, Gerald (Nig) Lipscomb and Outfielder Bill Nagel went through hitting drills along with the others. Art (Skinny) Graham scheduled to replace Leo Nonnenkamp in center field, watched from the stands.

Most pleasing to Prothro was the condition of Pitchers Koli Sharpe and Bob Porter. Sharp, 17 pounds heavier than usual, worked over two hours as did Porter. Both Bob and Koli underwent a two-week preliminary training routine at Hot Springs. Owen Echeez, who part-timed with the Travelers last season before being optioned to Hazelton, also was on hand.

Billy Evans, business manager of the Red Sox farming system, is expected Tuesday along with George Forpaver, Hazelton manager, who will direct the rookies.

Morning and afternoon sessions will be held starting Thursday. Jimmy McLeod, who turned in his basketball uniform and left Little Rock High School to sign with the Little Rock Travelers in the spring of 1929, is on the verge of returning to the scene where he broke into professional baseball.

Arkansas College Loses in Tourney

Batesville Five Defeated by Rocky Mountain Champions

DENVER, Colo.—(AP)—Montana State and Central Missouri State Teachers, the two top-ranking college teams in the 31st national A. A. U. basketball tournament, topped up triumphs in headline games in another long first round program Monday.

Another campus outfit, Weber Junior College of Ogden, Uta, came close to springing an upset, extending the favored Chicago Harmon's Demons team to the limit before losing, 45 to 49.

Montana State's Bobcats, Rocky Mountain Conference champion the last two years, concentrated most of their scoring power in the second half for a 59-46 victory over Arkansas College of Batesville.

Eddie Exum, Montana State's star scored 125 points in setting a new high mark for the tournament to that juncture.

Central Missouri, which won the intercollegiate college tournament title at Kansas City last week, pulled away in the last 10 minutes in trimming Fairbault (Okla.) A. & M., 36 to 29.

The McLeod transaction had been pending but reported "that the deal had been held up." They also reported that McLeod is listed as a hold-out but may sign a Cat contract.

"All I know is that we agreed on terms," said Prothro. "If there have been any new developments I don't know anything about it. That's all I can tell you tonight."

Warn Farmers of Poisonous Plant

Seven Head Cattle Dead in Howard County From Nuttall Camas

Farmers in Hempstead county were warned Tuesday by the county agent, to watch their pastures for the poisonous plant, Nuttall's Death Camas. It is believed to have killed 7 head of cattle in Howard county recently, and is known to occur in much of the western part of the state.

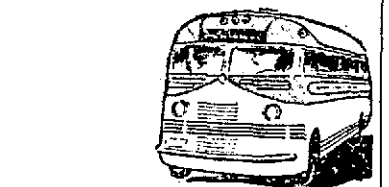

Cattle are poisoned by as little of the plant as 25 of one per cent of the animal weight. Sheep may require only about 18 of one per cent, and they may be killed by about 6 of one per cent of the animal weight.

At this time the plant appears as a tuft of bright green, narrow, succulent leaves, 1/2 to 3/4 inch wide, and 6 to 10 inches long. They arise from a bulb much like that of a narcissus, but lack the bluish-green cast of the narcissus leaves and of the common wild hyacinth.

All parts of the plant are poisonous. Experiments have shown that the

BIRTH OF A SONG

"I LOVE LIFE" By Mana-Zucca and Irwin M. Cassel

At the age of four Mana-Zucca clambered gracefully on to a piano stool, and gave her first public performance.

At eight she played a Beethoven Concerto with the New York Symphony Orchestra under Walter Damrosch.

At thirteen, Mana-Zucca commenced a world-wide, intensive tour of the centers of musical culture.

In seven years she gave many performances and gathered much musical background. "I Love Life" is the expression of her acquired philosophy.

Franz Lehár liked Mana-Zucca's voice, and persuaded her to try operetta. But after a successful trial, she found it was not "serious" enough.

Mana-Zucca settled in Miami with her husband, Irwin M. Cassel, and their young son, Marwin Shepard.

A tireless worker, success did not put a stop to Mana-Zucca's efforts, and her pile of manuscripts kept growing.

She is one of the most prolific women composers in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, with over five hundred compositions to her credit.

CLUB NOTES

Green Laseter The Green Laseter Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. M. E. Perkins with six members and Miss Rouse present.

The meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock. Roll call was answered by each member naming their favorite spring flowers.

Miss Rouse gave a demonstration on handwoven chair seats, after which several contests were enjoyed. Then we adjourned to meet with Mrs. A. M. Blevins on Thursday, March 31.

The Texas highway department reports 1,300 miles of roadway and 43 bridges, underpasses and overpasses costing $26,339,998 were under construction in that state at the start of 1938.

Hundreds of bones of prehistoric elephants have been found in the Texas panhandle.

The increased growth possible and more light and air allowed. Pecans are set 65 to 75 feet apart, requiring from 8 to 12 trees per acre.

June budded peach trees give the best results, and one-year-old apple whips are the most satisfactory. If these trees are received during a wet period and planting is delayed, they may be "heeled in" with the roots well covered in a trench.

When the tree is set in the field, a hole wide and deep enough to receive the roots without cramping must be dug. The top 3 or 4 inches of dirt should be saved in a separate pile and placed in the bottom of the hole. After cutting off all damaged roots or extra long roots which would be bent, the tree is set deep enough so that it will stand slightly deeper than it stood in the nursery. The dirt is thrown in slowly and packed firmly about all the roots. At several levels during filling the dirt should be tramped firmly with the feet. The top 3 inches may be left loose as a mulch and when they settle slightly a basin will form to catch rain water.

Often a planting board helps to keep the young tree straight. It is laid across the hole and the tree is placed in a small notch in the center of the board. This holds the tree in the center of the hole. This holds the tree in the proper position while filling the hole.

International Is Help to Yankees

Giants Also Are Assisted With Promising Rookie Players

By the Associated Press The Yankees may have to credit the International league with an assist if the Bronx Bombers win another world championship.

For New York dug into the Newark roster for replacements it needed to carry on. The Yanks lifted Joe Gordon into the secondbase slot Tony Lazzeri vacated and brought on Joe Beggs, Atley Donald, Steve Cundie and Eugene Chandler to bolster a pitching staff that possibly might crack sometime.

No rookie will make his debut under more pressure than Gordon, the former Oregon university youngster who flashed brightly last season.

Although he hit under .300 for Newark, Gordon was a competent lead-off man and a long hitter. His fielding was fancy.

Beggs, who won 21 games, and Donald, who topped 18, figure prominently in the Yankee battle plans. Chandler went well for the champions last spring before an injury shunted him back to the minors. McCarthy expects much of him again.

New York also took Catcher Warren Rosar and Infielder Babe Dahlgren from the Bears.

Newark contributed Catcher Willard Horshberger to Cincinnati and First-Baseman George McQuinn and

STORIES IN STAMPS

DICTATOR-KING: CAROL

THE life of Rumania's handsome King Carol has been one startling surprise stacked on another. Surprise at least to the Rumanian people who have learned they will never know what to expect next.

Carol sprang his first official surprise when, as a crown prince, he married a commoner's daughter. But the family forced him to divorce her. So for a second wife he chose Princess Helen of Greece. And again divorce followed wedding bells when Carol renounced his rights to the throne and fled to Paris with the titian-haired Mme. Magda Lupescu.

Then suddenly in 1930, five years after his flight to Paris, Carol returned by plane to Bucharest and was accepted as ruler of Rumania. He had supposedly promised to banish Mme. Lupescu but in the face of strong opposition he still clung to her. Moreover, he strengthened his political power.

Now he has sprung the most startling surprise of all; by a striking coup d'etat he has established himself virtual dictator over Rumania. His new ministry has been ordered to rule by decree, without benefit of Parliament, freedom of the press has been abolished and modified form of martial law set up, enforced by the army. Repeatedly honored on Rumanian stamps, Carol is shown here on a 1936 value.

Nine Indians Carry Tribe's Traditions

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—There are just nine Oklahomans left to carry on the traditions of a once strong Indian tribe, the Piankashaws.

The tribal lore started centuries ago with the banding together on mid-western plains of a group of sturdy aborigines.

Last chief of the Piankashaws, George Washington Finley, died in 1933. These left to tell the story of the tribe are his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Barnard of Tulsa, and her children, Gletta, Leota and Charles; his son, Leo Finley; his grandchildren, Carol Jeanne, Dixie Dean, John and Jim Finley who live in Minami, Okla.

A Tulsa artist, Frank Vonder Lancken, painted the chief's portrait a short time before his death, called it "The Last Piankashaw." But now he plans a portrait of another Piankashaw, Carol Jeanne Finley.

Tom Yawkey Signs West Coast Prize

Ted Williams, 20, Expected Make Series Bid for Outfield Post

By the Associated Press The far west tabs Ted Williams as the Pacific coast league's No. 1 rookie graduate.

Tom Yawkey heard the booming of the ballyhoo tom-toms and reached for his checkbook before other owners could unfurl their fountain pen artillery. So, Ted's a Red Sox now.

Lanky and spare, Outfielder Williams stretches his 175 pounds over a 6-foot-11 frame. He's just 19 and still a-growing. Ted clouded 25 homers when he was with San Diego last season, drove in 98 runs and batted .292. Boston has three pretty snappy fly-chasing regulars and other richly-advised recruits, so Ted will find the competition very spicy.

Ted's teammate, Joe Gonzales, also gets a chance with the Gold Sox. A 20-year-old right-hander, Joe came up last summer and won one and lost two for Boston.

A youngster who bears the approval of Joe DiMaggio, the coast's greatest recent gift to the majors, may be the Philadelphia A's second sweater. He's Dario Lodigiani (say it like Load-E-Johnny). He belted 18 homers, and batted .327 for Oakland, a good year's work for a 20-year-old.

Another trio that likely will stick includes Outfielder Max West and Nino Bongioanni (Bongiovanni for long) and Infielder Pete Coscarart.

The 330 stick mark achieved by West, a 6-foot-1, 182-pound southpaw slinger with the Missions, attracted Casey Stengel's attention and Max may be humming around with the other Boston Bees.

The accent on youth is popular now in Cincinnati, and Boston, whose .322 average calls for no apologies, probably will become a Redman. Coscarart is among Brooklyn's best prospects.

Comebackers include Outfielder Ruppert Thompson and Infielder Steve Meser. Sent to San Diego by the Reds, Thompson is back with the Cubs; White Sox, while Meser, who started with Los Angeles after failing to make the White Sox, is ready for another Chicago test with the Cubs. Mike Tresch, from Portland, came to the White Sox in a winter swap with Detroit and may share catching duties with the aging Luke Sewell.
